Tim Maifeld, Ph.D. Promoted to Director of Education at Colorado Technical University Sioux Falls Campus

Sioux Falls, S.D., March 5, 2009 – Colorado Technical University (CTU) has announced the promotion of Tim Maifeld, Ph.D. to director of education at CTU's Sioux Falls campus. In his new role, Maifeld will oversee all academic, student services and career services functions.

"Dr. Maifeld's considerable experience in academics coupled with his tenure at CTU, make him well qualified for this position," said David Heflin president of the CTU Sioux Falls campus. "As director of education, Tim will manage all academic operations at the Sioux Falls campus to continue to provide our students and faculty with highly valuable and relevant educational experiences and professional services."

Maifeld joined CTU as a professor of computer science in 1999 following a successful career as a software trainer and consultant. From 2000 to 2009, Maifeld served as dean of computer science and information technology at CTU's Sioux Falls campus. Maifeld is an active researcher and has published numerous papers on his work in computer science. His research in Genetic-Based Unit Commitment Algorithm earned him the 1996 Research Excellence Award from the Iowa State Electrical Engineering Department.

Maifeld holds a bachelor's degree in math from Wartburg College, a master's degree in electrical engineering from South Dakota State University and a doctorate degree in electrical engineering from Iowa State University.
